

That's why Nikki Osei, 32, chose to leave the heavy lifting to PopBliss, a new company dedicated to delivering the surprise pop-up wedding of your dreams. She and her new husband, Sean Barrett, joined five other couples this past March to exchange vows in a simultaneous event.

"I went with a pop up wedding for no other reason than I didn't want to be bothered with the planning or ridiculous costs," says the NY-based publicist. "PopBliss afforded me with a luxury wedding sans seating charts!"