The idea of weddings continues to drastically change with the introduction of POPBliss, a group wedding event to be held in New York City between March 30 and 31. It's a pop-up that will see up to 10 couples married together, free of hassle and full of love.

A concept created by R. Kristi Modern Hospitality, this group wedding pop-up will not only include a bridal brunch and live stream of the wedding, but also a full wedding reception and perks like hotel accommodations and a welcome party. The best part? Each celebration will only cost $5000. To keep everything as spontaneous and whimsical as possible, the location is kept secret. If this takes off, the face of weddings will be even more unique than ever.
